Corporate Social Responsibility

Houston reVision is a non-profit organization that collaborates with socially responsible local businesses. Together, they provide volunteer opportunities, donation matching programs, and corporate grants to support over 10,000 at-risk youth in Harris County. The goal is to prevent juvenile justice involvement and homelessness by empowering young people to reach their full potential. Houston reVision is dedicated to providing the necessary resources for these youth to grow into successful professionals who can positively contribute to their communities.

Support the most economically challenged and diverse Houston neighborhoods.

Houston reVision is supporting the most underprivileged neighborhoods in Houston. By participating in group volunteer activities, your business can showcase its dedication to the community's well-being. Our projects align with your organization's core values, such as promoting equality, diversity, and inclusion in the workplace, treating employees with respect, giving back to the community, and prioritizing mental health. Take a step towards making a positive impact today!

According to research by the University of Pennsylvania, corporate volunteering can enhance employee morale, productivity, and retention.

Incorporate the "doing good" concept into the company's business model.

Your company can support reVision programs by matching employee donations. This action helps to connect youth with mentors, positive peers, and life-changing resources by leveraging the power of community.

Businesses that prioritize social responsibility are attractive to both potential customers and employees.

Houston reVision, a registered 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, actively seeks corporate support for our ongoing work. We are eligible to receive such gifts and would greatly appreciate any assistance in furthering our mission.
